IIT (ISM) research scholar's initiative to educate children of underprivileged section of society under the banner of Karma Jyoti recognized at different forums

The initiative of a group of research scholars of IIT (ISM) to provide quality education to underprivileged children under the banner of Karma Jyoti, a functional group of Centre of Societal Mission (CSM) is being recognized at different forums.

Sanjeev Anand Sahu, Associate Dean, Rajbhasa Karyanwayan of IIT (ISM) who is also the head of the Centre of Societal Mission has been felicitated in this regard during a seminar, titled, Study of the Educational Status of Tribal Women in Jharkhand in the present scenario conducted by Koylanchal Charitable Foundation at Hirapur in Dhanbad on September 24.

The seminar during which educationists from across the country were present discussed among other things, the crucial need for enhancing educational opportunities for tribal women, ensuring their holistic development and empowerment. The seminar also witnessed an insightful discussion on Challenges faced by tribal communities in accessing quality education and potential solutions that can be implemented to bridge the gap.

“The basic aim of Centre of Societal Mission of IIT (ISM) launched in 2015 is to ensure sustainable and inclusive growth of villages situated in vicinity of institute and Karma Jyoti as a functional group of CSM conducts free coaching to help the meritorious students of the underprivileged section of the society besides computer training to such students” said Sahu and large number of girl students of tribal community have taken benefit of free coaching conducted every year by research scholars of our institute.
